

Diane Evans
Senior Vice President, Enterprise Talent Planning Office
Wells Fargo & Company
diane.evans@wellsfargo.com

As Senior Vice President and Head of Wells Fargo Enterprise Talent Planning Office, Diane oversees succession planning, executive development, performance management, onboarding, mentoring, and talent infrastructure. She leads a team of talent management professionals who are focused on ensuring that potential successors are identified for critical roles, the company continues to improve diverse representation in senior leader ranks, and increasing the number of “One Wells Fargo” leaders with cross-enterprise experience to meet current and emerging business needs. The talent planning effort is an important component to helping Wells Fargo customers succeed financially and creating long-term economic growth and quality of life for everyone in our communities.

A 12-year veteran of the company, Evans was previously Senior Vice President of Enterprise Talent Planning and Development, with primary responsibilities for developing an enterprise-wide leadership development and diversity learning strategy for the company. She was also a Vice President of Learning and Development in the Consumer Lending Group, managing talent and learning strategy for Wells Fargo’s consumer lending businesses. She also held leadership development, organization development, and learning leader roles at First Data Corp and Level 3.

She currently serves as the chair for the company-wide Talent Management Community of Practice, is an advisor for the Enterprise Diversity Council, and a co-chair for the Talent and Organization Development Committee. Diane also sits on the Conference Board Council of Talent Management Executives and is a peer advisor for the Organization Excellence Exchange.

Diane received a B.S. degree in Political Science from Northwest Missouri State University and a M.Ed. in Human Resource and Organizational Development from Colorado State University. She lives in Des Moines, IA with her husband and 3 dogs.