

Jennifer Mueller
Associate Professor of Management
University of San Diego
jmuller@san Diego.edu

Jennifer Mueller is currently faculty in the School of Business Administration at USD in the management department and teaches organizational behavior and leadership classes at both the undergraduate and MBA level. Mueller's research examines the costs and benefits of collaboration in teams, as well as the biases people have against creative ideas and creative people. She has published several articles in top management journals including: Academy of Management Journal, Administrative Science Quarterly, Journal of Applied Psychology, Organizational Behavior and Human Decision Processes, Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin, Journal of Experimental Social Psychology and Psychological Science.

She is currently on the editorial board of the Journal of Applied Psychology as well as Organizational Behavior and Human Decision Processes. She has held positions at several business schools including Yale School of Management, the Stern School of Business at NYU and was an assistant professor at the Wharton School for seven years before joining the USD faculty in 2012